Call of Duty®: Black Ops III Vengeance (ENG FRE) BLES-01717 NPEB-01204 Optimization and scale-up of the production of human interferon gamma with recombinant Escherichia coli cells. To optimize conditions for the production of recombinant interferon gamma (IFN γ) using recombinant Escherichia coli cells in a bioreactor. IFN γ was expressed from pET3IFN γ in recombinant E. coli cells, and three different culture media were investigated. The optimal culture conditions for the fermentation of IFN γ were determined as: medium composition: M9 + 0.2% (w/v) glycerol + 0.2% (w/v) glucose, feeding time: 3 h, temperature: 37 degrees C, and aeration rate: 2.5 vvm. An analysis of variance showed that the initial glucose concentration was significant, but other variables were not. Then, the medium was modified and the optimal medium composition was determined as: M9 + 0.1% (w/v) glycerol + 0.1% (w/v) glucose, feeding time: 3 h, temperature: 37 degrees C, and aeration rate: 2.5 vvm. The highest specific production rate ($q(p)$) of IFN γ was obtained at 37 degrees C (2.15 g/g per h). The highest final concentration ($C(p)$) and yield (Y) were 0.45 g/L and 0.42 g/g, respectively. The $q(p)$ and Y values were similar to values obtained under shake flask conditions, and volumetric yields were higher. The fermentation of IFN γ was successfully scaled up using a 15-L bioreactor. The optimal medium composition was also effective for the large-scale culture of IFN γ .

Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a heat-insulating composite body having excellent heat-insulating property, lightweight property and corrosion-resistance, and in particular to a heat-insulating composite body used as a wall or a roof panel of buildings, and which is also usable as a packaging material of industrial chemicals. 2. Description of the Related Art The combustion heat of a combustion furnace or the like tends to be directly transferred to the wall of the furnace through the combustion gas. For this reason, the insulation is provided in the wall of the combustion furnace. Such a heat-insulating material is required to have not only the heat-insulating property to effectively shield the heat but also the lightweight property to reduce the weight of the combustion furnace. Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 3-209836 discloses a lightweight heat-insulating material. According to the publication, a heat-ins 2d92ce491b
