Types of Head Shavers

A head shaver has three main parts: the razor, the trimmer and the blades.

- Razor: The razor is used to cut hair off of your scalp. Head shavers come with various types of razor blades. Some have a single blade that simply cuts the hair off, while others have two or more blades that uses tiny teeth on the edge to remove unwanted hair.
- Trimmer: The trimmer is used to cut long hairs down to a length where they can be easily shaved by the razor and are also used for shaping your hairstyle. Trimmers vary in length, some reaching up to 18 inches in length while others only reach six inches.
- Blades: Blades are often made out of stainless steel, ceramic or titanium and are responsible for cutting your hair off at its base so it doesn't grow back again. Blades are also often replaceable depending on how often you shave your head.
